A photograph of three women in bright yellow, strapless, floor-length dresses performing a dance outdoors. They are captured in motion, with their arms and bodies angled as if in the middle of a choreographed routine. The background is slightly blurred, showing a crowd of people and trees, suggesting a festival or public event setting.

A photograph showing a man in a white t-shirt and grey trousers operating a large, traditional wooden spinning wheel (charkha) mounted on a wooden frame. He is seated and using a long, thin stick to spin the yarn. A crowd of people, including children and adults, are gathered around him, watching the demonstration. The setting appears to be outdoors on a paved surface.

A man in a white t-shirt is working on a large, intricate wooden structure, possibly a sculpture or a piece of furniture, while a group of people, including a nun, look on. The structure is made of dark wood and has a complex, geometric design. The man is using a tool to work on the wood. The people are standing around him, watching his work. The nun is wearing a black habit and a white veil. The background is a plain, light-colored wall.

A photograph of two men in traditional Ewe and Fante costumes performing on a stage. The man on the left wears a tall, striped hat and a dark, patterned robe, holding a staff. The man on the right wears a white hat and a dark robe with a colorful, patterned skirt, holding a staff. They are standing on a stage with a wooden railing in front of them. The background shows a large crowd of people and trees.
